

22. A digital mobile phone as set forth in claim 21, wherein said digital mobile phone further includes memory means provided in said digital phone, and further including a software program associated with said memory means and a central processing unit to effect selective switching from one to another of said subscriber identification module cards.--

REMARKS

New claims 8-22 relate to the originally filed specification, including figures and original claims 1-7. New claims 8-18 are method claims and claims 19-22 are apparatus claims. It is respectfully suggested that the claims find support in the originally filed specification.

Respectfully submitted,
